RE: NMT Seminars

To Whom It May Concern:

My name is Andrea C. Kary. My educational credentials are as follows:

Bachelor of Arts, Psychology, 1985, California State University, Fullerton.

Bachelor of Science, Human Biology, 1988, Los Angeles College of Chiropractic.

Doctor of Chiropractic, 1990, Los Angeles College of Chiropractic.

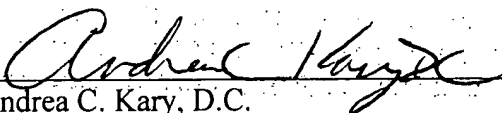

I have been practicing chiropractic in Richland, Wa. since 1990. I have maintained a minimum of 25 hours per year continuing education in subjects of orthopedics, pediatrics, nutrition, homeopathy, technique, and radiology.

I have primarily used "Neuromodulation Technique" (NMT) for chronic pain conditions, but have also used it for depression and anxiety issues. The chronic pain conditions I have addressed with NMT were difficult syndromes that had not responded, or had only partially responded to courses of chiropractic and physical therapy. Some of these cases had also been under care of general physicians and/or neurologists. Considering that these cases were essentially failure cases, the improvement with NMT has been impressive. Improvement with depression/anxiety cases has often been quite startling with significant changes after 2-3 treatments. I have found NMT to be very useful in treating these types of cases.

NMT is taught by use of the seminar manual. The manual is very thorough, and the system works as disclosed. In fact, the manual works so well, that although I have not completed the full seminar series, I have been able to successfully apply some of the treatments by just studying the manual.

I personally think that NMT has the potential of revolutionizing our current concepts of health and health care.

Sincerely,

Andrea C. Kary, D.C.
